  I was impressed, however, by how Angela Shoulders treated the IT Support Staff who had to come address an issue with the technological solution for presenting class material from a computer to an overhead projector in a Moore building classroom. It was the beginning of class, right before lecture, when things went sideways with the computer. When the technician came, Angela was kind, patient, cool, calm, and collected until the issue was resolved. She was super respectful and encouraging to the person under pressure to resolve the problem quickly, (which he did). Seeing how she interfaced with her colleagues further solidified my opinion that Angela is a great human.
